

EXTRADITION LAWS and TREATIES

Recommended Publications for Legal Research,
International Law, 1980, Page 74

Contains Hundreds of Invaluable Treaties on Extradition and Judicial Assistance!

“The Law of Extradition is without doubt founded upon the broad principle that it is to the interest of civilized communities that crimes acknowledge to be such should not go unpunished, and it is part of the comity of nations that one State should afford to another every assistance towards bringing persons guilty of such crimes to justice.”

- Judgment of Lord Russell of Killowen Re Arton, [1896], 1 Q. B. 108

This valuable reference set brings together into one convenient work, all the operative extradition treaties of the United States, as well as U.S. legislative provisions pertaining to extradition. In addition, with the release of Volumes Three and Four in 1995, the author expanded the coverage to include Judicial Assistance agreements which relate closely in nature to the original extradition treaties.

In recent years, the United States has concluded more than 125 Judicial Assistance agreements with numerous countries to assist both parties in the gathering of evidence, the procurement of documents, and the service of process in the prosecution of crime. Altogether, this set will serve as an important research collection for those parties interested in current extradition agreements and international criminal procedure law.

The full text of the current edition of the United States Code Title 18 -- Crimes and Criminal Procedure; Chapter 18 -- Extradition; and the United States Department of Justice Manual, Section 9-15.000 on International Extradition and Related Matters are reproduced to enhance the value of the set.
