

KAVASS'S GUIDE TO THE UNITED STATES TREATIES IN FORCE

AALS Law Books Recommended for Libraries, List 82, Bibliography, Page 2, "B" Rated

The United States has the most complete and efficient system for documentation of treaty law of any country in the world. The United States Department of State compiles an annual list of all bilateral and multilateral agreements which are considered to be in whole or part in force for the United States as of January 1st of the relevant year, entitled Treaties in Force. Of course, it is not a comprehensive research tool, but instead, consists of two lists, one which deals with bilateral agreements and the other with multilateral agreements arranged by country and alphabetical order.

Recognizing the need for access to the current United States treaty law through a variety of retrieval approaches, this Guide to the United States Treaties in Force provides access to currently operative bilateral and multilateral agreements of the United States from a variety of perspectives.

Included in the Complete Set are:

- Part I: Numerical lists of in-force bilateral and multilateral treaties and agreements of the United States
- Part II: Subject lists of bilateral and multilateral treaties and agreements listed in Treaties in Force.
- Part III: Chronological index to United States multilateral agreements in force and a directory of multilateral treaties and agreements in force.
