New guide now available from Hein! Animals Confined for Human Benefit: A Legal Research Guide

Animals are confined for many reasons: to create food for human consumption, to study in research facilities, and to use for entertainment. Federal and state laws exist in an attempt to strike a balance between the welfare of these confined animals and the human benefit derived from their use. This growing body of law is the subject of this legal research guide. This title covers farm animals, laboratory animals, and exhibition and entertainment animals. Animals used for exhibition and human entertainment is a broad topic that includes zoos, rodeos, circuses, animal fighting, and canned hunting. (Traditional hunting is covered in this guide, as the animals are not confined.) This guide will assist researchers by providing the statutes, regulations, cases, and secondary resources needed to begin their research in this new and exciting area of law.
