FOREWORD

The American Law Institute Microfiche Publications is a collection of American Law Institute (ALI) project drafts, many of which are no longer available in print. Specifically, the fiche collection consists primarily of Preliminary, Council, Tentative, and Proposed Final Drafts of ALI Restatements of the Law and Codifications that are now out-of-print, were never published at all, or were published but not widely released.

The collection contains drafts and other historical documents from the Institute's Restatements of the Law, as well as from other Institute projects, including: the Federal Income Tax Project; the Federal Securities Code; the Model Code of Pre-Arrest Procedure; the Model Land Development Code; the Model Penal Code; the Study of the Division of Jurisdiction Between State and Federal Courts; and the Uniform Commercial Code (a project undertaken with the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws). The Institute has been working on these and other projects since 1923.

Official volumes of the Restatements of the Law that are no longer for sale are also part of the American Law Institute Microfiche Publications collection, as are out-of-print volumes of State Annotations to the First and Second Restatements of the Law. Furthermore, Annual Reports of the Institute and volumes of the Proceedings of ALI Annual Meetings, including the unpublished ALI Proceedings from 1946 to 1955, are available in this collection. The collection does not include publications of ALI-ABA or confidential and archival documents of the Institute. The Institute's Archives are in the custody of the University of Pennsylvania and are available to researchers at the University's Biddle Law Library.

More than 3,000 Institute drafts and other documents have been filmed since this microfiche project began in late 1983. Now containing more than 10,000 individual fiche, the collection is updated periodically as the Institute completes projects and releases documents for filming.

Although correspondence and other confidential documents are not included in this collection, the documents which have been fished form most of the "legislative history" of the Restatements and the Institute's other projects. With this collection, lawyers, law professors, judges, law librarians, and other legal researchers are able to trace the evolution of entire Institute projects, as well as particular formulations of law contained within them.

The first Guide to American Law Institute Microfiche Publications was released in 1986. Used to locate a particular fished document within the entire collection, the Guide has proven to be a valuable tool for legal researchers. With the new edition, Hein has expanded the information in the Guide to include information on additional documents that have been published by the American Law Institute and that may still be available from the American Law Institute. After each document is either a number indicating the number of fiche for that particular document (signifying its availability through Hein Microfiche Publications), or a designation “ALI” indicating that the document may be available from the Institute. Consult the ALI Catalog distributed with this Guide or contact ALI at (800) 253-6397 for information on availability. An “N/R” designation identifies documents that Hein has filmed or is currently filming with ALI’s permission, but has not yet shipped to subscribers.

An “NYR” identifies items received by Hein, but which are being held pending permission from ALI to film and release. Finally, a “UTL” designation identifies an out-of-print document that Hein has not been able to locate for filming. Altogether, this Guide provides an extensive list of documents published by ALI and where they may be located. Special thanks are extended to the ALI Publications staff for their assistance in updating the new Guide.

The Institute first informed the legal community about the American Law Institute Microfiche Publications in November 1984 by announcing:

As a result of considerable interest that has been expressed by lawyers, legal scholars, and law libraries, the American Law Institute has arranged with William S. Hein & Company to make available on microfiche preliminary and Council drafts for projects on which the Institute has completed its work. Although these drafts have traditionally been cloaked with confidentiality, the Council concluded that, once the project to which the drafts relate has been approved by the ALI as a whole, the drafts should be made available to the legal community.

To indicate the status of those documents within the collection that were previously confidential, the Institute has requested the following notice to be printed on the first fiche of each of them:

This material was distributed by the Institute to a limited group of individuals as part of the Institute’s process for consideration of drafts prior to publication and distribution to its membership. As such, it is not deemed to have had the imprimatur of the Institute. Limited distribution in any Institute project of materials that are drafts usually embraces distribution to and consideration by a group of Advisers, Consultants, or both, and by the council of the Institute; or may be material that consists of memoranda prepared by Reporters prior to submission to Consultants and Advisers or the Council. These materials are now being made available for historical purposes to such individuals as may find them useful in their research efforts. They may be cited or quoted now only if their character is explicitly stated.

Note that the abbreviated fiche headers may not exactly match the entries in this Guide. Therefore, citations should be made from the documents, not from the headers or from this Guide.

Special thanks are extended to the American Law Institute Library, the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, Columbia University Law Library, Harvard University Law Library, and the University of Pennsylvania Law Library, all of which have greatly assisted this project by locating and providing these rare and out-of-print documents.
